This nineteenth annual edition of the YEARBOOK OF THE UNITED NATIONS provides a compact, fully indexed account of the wide range of the activities of the United Nations and the intergovernmental agencies related to it during the calendar year 1965 (with the exception of the General Assembly proceedings in January and February 1965, which were included in the preceding volume). Like its predecessors, the YEARBOOK will serve as an indispensable aid for all those concerned with international affairs.

Part One of the 1965 YEARBOOK contains a narrative account — accompanied by detailed documentary references and texts of resolutions — of the substantive work of the United Nations on political and security issues, on economic, humanitarian and social questions, on matters concerning the International Trusteeship System and non-self-governing territories and the Declaration on Granting Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples, and on legal, administrative and budgetary questions.

From the Foreword

"The annual editions of the YEARBOOK OF THE UNITED NATIONS constitute, in a sense, the memory of the Organization. They provide a continuing historical account of the complex and numerous endeavours that go into the functioning and development of the United Nations as an essential centre for harmonizing the actions of nations in attaining their common goals and as an instrument for world peace and human advancement . . . This volume, like its predecessors, is presented in the belief that, in contributing to the knowledge of the facts of world organization, it will increase understanding, appreciation and awareness of the indispensable role of organized international co-operation in this era of swift change."

— U Thant, Secretary-General

Part Two surveys the activities of the intergovernmental organizations related to the United Nations.

Among the major matters described are the differences among United Nations Members concerning the establishment, conduct and financing of peace-keeping operations; the representation of China in the United Nations; the apartheid policies of South Africa; and the situations in Southern Rhodesia, the Dominican Republic, India and Pakistan, and Vietnam. Also included is the text of the address given by Pope Paul VI to the General Assembly.

Appendices include: (1) the roster of the United Nations (2) the Charter of the United Nations and the Statute of the International Court of Justice (3) the structure of the United Nations (4) matters considered by the principal organs of the United Nations (5) delegations to the General Assembly and the Councils and (6) United Nations information centres and offices.
